Congratulations Ronald Devier, our November "Lucky Winner!" Ronald is a native of Cheyenne County, living in the area for 81 years. He is retired from farming, however continues to help his son Rod. Ron enjoys spending time with his family and considers farming his hobby.

Ronald receives a $50 credit on his account. If you would like to be included in our next drawing, and avoid the $5 delinquent fee, please send your payment before the 18th of the month. For your convenience, we offer Automatic Bank Draft, Credit Card and Online Payment. For more information, give us a call or visit wheatbelt.com, select the Customer Services menu.

AUTOPAY - THE EASY WAY

Security is usually the issue people have with autopay, but when you think about it, if you mail a check, and it gets into the wrong hands, the opportunity for identity theft is just as great. At that point, however, they even have your signature to copy. Just another side that most people do not think about.

Bank Bill Pay does not guarantee your payment will be on time, please make sure ample time is allowed for mail delivery. We have had numerous calls from delinquent customers that their Wheat Belt statement showed paid on their bank account. All that means is that the money was pulled from the account, and a payment was sent. It does not guarantee the delivery.

If you use a credit card, you are protected by the issuing bank. Even if you use a debit card, you are protected. No one can say they are 100 percent protected from any breach, but our on-line system is very secure.

Isn't it time to stop worrying as to whether your payment will reach its destination? Never worry about your electric bill again, by enrolling in autopay.

We need a signed authorization form on file. You can use the form printed on the back of your statement or print one from our site at www.wheatbelt.com. Call the office at 308-254-5871 or 800-261-7114, and we can mail or e-mail a form to you.

COLD WEATHER
HEAT PUMP Efficiency to five degrees

Happy New Year! It has been a pleasure to serve your electrical needs over the past years, and I continue to look forward to finding better ways to make your lives better in 2019.

Wheat Belt PPD, and the electrical industry, continually work on research to improve on our delivery of electricity, and on better ways to use electricity, both in efficiency and comfort. We have several levels of research going at all times. I have been fortunate to serve on one of our national research councils and have an opportunity to guide the research, focusing on the rural needs. Our power supplier, Tri-State G&T, also conducts research on various ways to make electricity more efficient. Tri-State G&T partnered with the Electrical Power Research Institute (EPRI) to evaluate cold-climate air to air heat pumps. There are four test units that were installed in December as part of this research. Two of the units were installed in Wheat Belt's territory. These systems will maintain air to air efficiency down to approximately five degrees above zero, compared to traditional air to air heat pumps, which start losing efficiency below 32 degrees. The two-year test will prove these units in our climate, will gather economic data for comparison to other heating sources, will monitor home comfort, various levels of temperature adjustments, and find optimum heating and cooling schedules to maximize efficiency. After the two-year EPRI test, Wheat Belt will continue to test the units for reliability, rate development, and home energy efficiency returns. We look forward to sharing the results of this research with the national industry, manufacturers, and with you, so that you can make the best choice when it comes to installing an HVAC system and other energy efficiency upgrades.

WINTER SAFETY TIPS

It is heartbreaking to read about deaths or serious injuries caused by home fires, and I don't remember ever not hearing about a fire when winter hits. Whether it is from a faulty chimney, gas, propane or an electrical hazard, most home fires are totally preventable with diligence in checking equipment, cords and making sure you have fail-safe safety equipment installed.

Make sure your chimney is checked and clean, have routine maintenance performed on fossil fuel furnaces, and make sure your electrical appliances are in good repair and wiring is not frayed or undersized. Never hide or coil cords, and do not leave space heaters unattended that are not rated for constant use. Always buy UL listed appliances. Instruct your children never to leave anything lying in front of a heater

You should test your smoke and carbon monoxide detectors monthly. If you have children, make sure they know what to do in the case of fire. Everyone should know where the family will meet if different exits are to be used, and they should use the closest exit if it is not blocked by fire. If you have two stories, is there a ladder rope available for escape?

Don't assume it will not happen to you! Did you know, on average, seven people die every day from a home fire - most are children and elderly.

Nearly 100 Years of Success -Community Owned Energy - Public Power in Nebraska-

There is only one state in the nation that serves every resident's and business's electrical needs from a community-owned cooperative or public power district. Local electric boards make the decisions that govern their district.

Public and cooperative ownership keep costs low for the state's consumers. Nebraskans enjoy one of the lowest rates for electricity in the nation, and being non-profit, revenues are reinvested in plant to ensure reliable and inexpensive costs in the future. The key is to keep control local. Who knows better than the people served how to operate at optimal efficiency. Employees are your friends and neighbors, and have your interests in mind.
